MEMORANDUM

TO: BBG – Andre Mendes, Director of Global Operations

FROM: OIG – Robert B. Peterson, Assistant Inspector General for Inspections

SUBJECT: Limited-Scope Review of Broadcasting Board of Governors Operations in Baku, Azerbaijan, ISP-IB-15-02

Executive Summary

The Office of Inspector General (OIG) found no significant issues at the Radio Free Europe/Radio Liberty (RFE/RL) Azerbaijan news bureau or with the Voice of America (VOA) Azerbaijan operations; however, limited financial resources and host-country interference were identified as challenging issues for these Broadcasting Board of Governors (BBG) operations. The relationship between RFE/RL and the embassy is characterized as good, and the relationship between RFE/RL and VOA is described as collaborative. RFE/RL has been able to implement a number of the goals of the BBG Strategic Plan 2012–2016, Impact through Innovation and Integration, through a series of programming activities, including use of social media, which has been an effective tool for reaching out to targeted audiences in Azerbaijan.

Background

The Government of Azerbaijan owns all television outlets, and owners of all newspapers have partisan political loyalties. This situation creates an atmosphere of intimidation of and interference with RFE/RL and VOA journalists. RFE/RL reports that RFE/RL and VOA employees in Azerbaijan have been subjected to physical and psychological threats (two journalists were murdered, and numerous others have been imprisoned on questionable charges) over stories about taboo subjects, such as official corruption and negative stories about the President and his family. Freedom House—a U.S.-based nongovernmental organization that conducts research and advocacy on democracy, political freedom, and human rights—rates Azerbaijan as “not free” in its 2014 Freedom of the Press index.

Purpose, Scope, and Methodology

The limited-scope review of BBG operations in Azerbaijan took place in Baku between April 28 and May 17, 2014, in connection with the OIG inspection of Embassy Baku. The inspector conducted survey work in Washington, DC, during April 2014. The inspector focused on interviews with the bureau chief and journalists in Baku as well as with embassy public affairs employees. The inspector also conducted a telephone interview with the RFE/RL Azerbaijani service chief in Prague, where the RFE/RL main office is located.

Radio Free Europe/Radio Liberty Azerbaijani Service’s Salary Issue

RFE/RL Azerbaijan has 17 employees at the news bureau and 20 stringers around the country. The RFE/RL bureau chief reported that employee salaries have not kept up with the country’s skyrocketing inflation (20–25 percent this year). They also said that their salaries are no longer competitive with those of employees from large media outlets.

Challenging Working Conditions

Azerbaijan can be a dangerous place to work for independent journalists. The Government of Azerbaijan, although not banning RFE/RL and VOA employees, has made their lives uncomfortable. The only VOA stringer is still recovering from injuries inflicted by Baku State University security at a protest in April 2014. An RFE/RL journalist has been called into the Azerbaijani prosecutor’s office several times this year after she wrote about official family corruption. Embassy Baku and BBG supported the journalist by speaking on her behalf at press briefings and through official embassy statements. The Department of State’s annual human rights report states that political, civil, and human rights in Azerbaijan deteriorated over the past year. The Government of Azerbaijan used libel suits, unfair trials, physical attacks, financial pressure, and imprisonment to clamp down on opposition media.

RFE/RL journalists must renew their accreditation annually with the Ministry of Foreign Affairs. Without credentials, journalists may be denied entry to official events. The ministry has already delayed renewing their credentials by 2 months.

Broadcasting Board of Governors Programming

In accordance with the BBG 5-year Strategic Plan goal #1, Unify the Agency into One Organization, Many Brands, VOA and RFE/RL have conducted some joint projects. VOA broadcasts on RFE/RL’s Azadliq Radiosu TV satellite channel. In this platform, RFE/RL broadcasts a weekly news magazine, individual interviews, and an entertainment program. In addition, RFE/RL television airs all VOA television content. RFE/RL provides office space to the VOA stringer.

A popular RFE/RL radio broadcast was curtailed in 2009 by an Azerbaijani law that prohibits international broadcasters from using the country’s FM frequency. As a result, RFE/RL increased its use of Internet and direct-to-home satellite television, although neither of these has been free of interference. Through a marketing affiliate agreement, RFE/RL briefly broadcasted on Turkish-owned Turksat TV and Turksat Radio. The programming was jammed, which led to Turksat refusing to serve RFE/RL. Efforts are still underway with this affiliate partner, but options for finding other broadcasting partners with satellite availability are few. During a market research trip to Azerbaijan in late 2012, BBG discussed options with the Azerbaijani broadcasters. Unfortunately, the discussions did not result in RFE/RL programming placements. These projects relate to the BBG 5-year Strategic Plan goal #6, Combat Internet Censorship and Jamming.

Social Media

Social media use is still relatively open in Azerbaijan, although the government has persecuted some online activists for their social media posts. Local sources reported that since the October 2013 elections, the Government of Azerbaijan pays more attention to what is being said on social media and has begun to use social media to disseminate its message of intimidation.

Despite these challenges, over the past year, 33 percent of visits to the RFE/RL Azerbaijani Web site came from Facebook and the news bureau's fan pages have nearly 120,000 followers. The site also has 35,000 subscribers on YouTube, which the bureau director claims is the highest per capita rate anywhere in the former Soviet Union.

RFE/RL has a new show called "Know Your Rights" that covers human rights and daily life questions. One of the programs was titled, "Five Things you Should Know before you Open the Door to a Police Officer." RFE/RL has also added a Facebook radio show that features a talking watermelon discussing serious news topics. These efforts relate to the BBG 5-year Strategic Plan goals #7, Elevate and Expand Social Media Innovation, and #8, Employ Leading-Edge Communications Techniques and Technologies.

Relationship with the Embassy

Embassy Baku's public affairs section and RFE/RL journalists and staff characterized their relations as good. RFE/RL stated that the embassy supports RFE/RL with deliveries of equipment through the pouch system.

The embassy offers support, as needed, when journalists are detained. If one of the RFE/RL journalists is arrested, the embassy puts out promptly an official statement on the embassy Web site and social media and contacts the Ministry of Interior to protest. The RFE/RL news bureau has interviewed the Ambassador twice, and a third interview is planned for the near future. Embassy Baku's regional security officer does not provide any security support to BBG operations in Baku. The RFE/RL employees interviewed during the inspection did not raise any office security concerns to the inspector.
